2016-09-09 Email Corey Marrow v. City of Mount Vernon, et al.pdf;

Actually, what I sent you on September 9, 2016 contained two deposition notices for today, and two for tomorrow (see copy attached). I sent a hard copy by first class mail. This wouldn't be the first time the dog ate something I sent to your office in paper form, which is why I also send everything by email.

Please let me know a date certain when you will provide the discovery responses.

As I mentioned in my voicemail, I am assuming that your witnesses are not attending their noticed depositions tomorrow. If that is incorrect, please let me know and I will schedule the court reporter. I will have to leave the depositions open, however, since I do not yet have any paper discovery from you.

Also, in reviewing your initial demands, you have the EBT scheduled for the 12th. Your Friday emails which I am just receiving now notice the EBT for today, the 11th.

Please give me a call ASAP to discuss.

Thanks,

David,

I just got your email. I knew you sent discovery demands, but I did not notice anything regarding an EBT. Also, I am working on the discovery. The office was closed yesterday, so I did not know about this supposed EBT. I get my emails, but I prefer if you also send the documents via mail.

I have not heard from you concerning whether your witnesses will appear at my office for their noticed depositions. Please let me know asap whether I should cancel the court reporter for tomorrow or not. Please note that, in my voice mail message, I erroneously stated that the first deposition was Wednesday. As the attached notices state, the first depositions are scheduled for tomorrow.
